PEARL HARBOR:
Code Secrets

As the Pearl Harbor investigation got underway at Washington, D. C., before a joint 10-man congressional committee, intercepted messages placed in the records disclosed that U. S. intelligence officers had cracked the secret Japanese code a year before the start of the war.

While the early intercepted messages dealt with ship movements, chief interest centered in the diplomatic documents dating from July 2, 1941, when Tokyo told Berlin that Japan would work for its "greater East Asia co-prosperity sphere" regardless of the world situation.

On November 22, Tokyo advised Nomura and Kurusu, Jap envoys negotiating in Washington with Secretary of State Hull, that it had been decided to set November 29 as the final date for effecting an agreement, after which things would "automatically . . . happen" in case of failure. Then on November 26, Nomura told Tokyo of Hull's ultimatum and the improbability of reaching a settlement.

On November 30, Tokyo informed Berlin of the imminence of war with the U. S. and later relayed the same message to Rome. Meanwhile, Tokyo warned its consulates on December 3 to be on guard for the "winds" messages in short wave radio broadcasts indicating rupture of relations with the Allies. The "east wind, rain" message (meaning war with the U. S.) then came through on December 5.

Among the last messages decoded were Tokyo's reply to Hull's ultimatum on December 6, with final instructions for presentation to the U. S. at 1 p. m. the following day coming in on the morning of December 7. Dated December 7, a Jap message from Budapest, Hungary, to Tokyo stated that the American minister to that country had presented its government with a communique from the British that a state of war would break out on the seventh.

BIG TALK:
Reassures U. S.

In the nation's capital to discuss disposition of the horrific atom bomb and touchy international questions, British Prime Minister Attlee also found time to address congress and outline the democratic objectives of his labor party just as negotiations for a multi-billion dollar loan from the U. S. were materializing.

Aimed at helping Britain get its export-import trade functioning again and lighten the load of six billion dollars of debts to wartime creditors, the projected multi-billion dollar advance was attacked in some circles as an aid to the labor party in socializing the United Kingdom. In addressing congress, Attlee declared that British businesses were only to be nationalized when they had grown into monopolies detrimental to the economy.

No radical in speech or appearance, the short, mild-mannered, mustached British leader described the labor party as a representative cross-section of liberal English society, with professional and business men, and even aristocrats, joining with the working classes in its membership.

In determining to retain the secret of the know-how of harnessing the atom, President Truman and Attlee declared that until effective safeguards were set up against its destructive use, no advantage would come from sharing its use. To work out such safeguards permitting exchange of vital information on atomic energy for industrial purposes, the Big Two recommended the creation of a United Nations commission.

As revealed by Foreign Minister Bevin in the house of commons recently, Britain has expressed deep concern over Russian demands for trusteeship of Eritrea and Tripolitania in the Near East, and establishment of a naval base in the Dodecanese islands, inasmuch as these territories lie athwart the famed "life-line" of the empire through the Mediterranean and Suez canal.

Coincident with Attlee's visit to Washington was the U. S. and British announcement that a joint commission of the two countries would undertake a study of the ticklish Jewish immigration question with a view toward easing the plight of European refugees.

Pressing importance of the issue was emphasized by continued Arab and Jewish riots in the Near East, with scores killed and wounded in widespread demonstrations over the question of making Palestine a national homeland for the Hebrews.

Because they have been banded into a league 33 million strong spread over the entire Near East, with control over rich oil deposits cherished by U. S. and British concerns, the Arabs have greatly complicated settlement of the Palestine issue in view of their stubborn opposition to large-scale Jewish immigration.

Taking the Arab objections into consideration, the joint U. S. and British commission will look into the question of whether heavy immigration would upset the Arabs' political and economic position in Palestine. Consideration also was to be given to providing remedial action in Europe itself and allowing immigration to other countries.

JAPAN:
Seek Trade

As the question of reconstituting the Japanese economy arose, Nipponese officials drew a pattern for the nation's future trade relations with the world by recommending a barter system to facilitate immediate imports of needed foodstuffs and raw materials. Under terms of surrender, Japan will not be permitted to produce some of the items formerly exported.

Under the Japanese proposal for the resumption of trade, Nippon would receive substantial amounts of food, salt, cotton, copra, coal, iron ore and non-ferrous metals, in exchange for gold, diamonds, silk, cotton goods, chemical products, medical supplies, machinery, hardware, and tin.

The problem of recreating the Japanese economy was pointed up by revelation that the country had been the sixth biggest prewar exporter, shipping out almost a billion dollars worth of goods each year. Of the total amount, China obtained the largest part, with the U. S. and India following.

Of the total amount, China obtained 27.2 per cent; the U. S., 18.2 per cent; India, 6.2 per cent; Great Britain, 3.7 per cent; Latin America, 3 per cent; Australia, 2 per cent, and Germany 0.7 per cent. Other European and Asiatic countries took 2.1 and 3.1 per cent of the remainder of exports respectively.

Predict Another Full Larder for U. S.

Total food available for civilians in 1946 will be considerably greater than in 1945 with average food consumption per capita expected to be larger than in 1945, the department of agriculture reported. All foods, however, will not be equally plentiful, with pork, the better grades of beef and veal, fats, oils and sugar in shorter supply.

Most of the expected improvement in civilian food supplies next year stems from the sharp cutback in military food requirements, which will drop to one-third or even one-quarter of the 1945 level. Exports and shipments of food in 1946 will continue large, assuming that satisfactory financial arrangements are completed. The greater part of these exports will move in the early months of the year, mainly to the United Kingdom and the liberated areas of Europe.

FOOD:
Europe's Need

As congress wrangled over appropriation of $550,000,000 to complete the original government pledge of $1,350,000,000 to the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration, and President Truman asked for another $1,350,000,000 for the agency, UNRRA officials abroad estimated that liberated European countries would need 9,000,000 tons of foodstuffs this winter to avoid starvation and serious malnutrition.

Because of interruptions in farming caused by the war and drought, European agriculture will be able to furnish metropolitan districts with food assuring a daily intake of only 1,200 calories, UNRRA said. Though receipt of 9,000,000 tons of food would boost this figure to 2,000 calories, the diet still would fall below standard nutritional requirements.

Investigations in Czechoslovakia, Greece, Italy, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Yugoslavia and Norway revealed that there was a pressing need for feed to help rebuild the cattle and dairy industries, seriously depleted by butchering of conquering armies and the diversion of grains to human consumption. Having already shipped 2,400 cows to southern and eastern Europe, UNRRA plans additional substantial monthly deliveries through the winter.

Meanwhile, American grain markets boomed upon the prospect of heavy demand in the coming months, with cash and December rye a sensational leader on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Cash rye held a substantial margin over cash wheat, what with distillers scrambling for the grain in view of a shortage of corn and sorghum, while the December future soared to almost $1.90 a bushel, topping December wheat for the first time since 1921.

Another bullish factor in the market was an estimated drop of 287,000,000 bushels in the 1944 rye crop in Europe where the grain is an important bread staple, and smaller supplies in both the U. S. and Canada.

Because of the slowness in delivery of grain to coastal ports, many experts feared exports in the early half of 1946 might fall below expectations. Railroads clamped on emergency demurrage charges in an effort to speed up unloading of box cars to ease the situation.

'Sonny' Sets Fast Pace

To the question of what makes Ellsworth ("Sonny") Wisecarver, 16, so irresistible to women older than him, Mrs. Eleanor Deveny, 24, who figured in his latest romantic interlude, mused: "Dream man—ideal companion—Perfect lover."

Mother of two children and wife of an army corporal serving in Japan, Mrs. Deveny eloped with "Sonny" following a meeting at the home of a mutual friend. Two years ago, Mrs. Elaine Monfredi, 22, and also the mother of two children, ran off with young Wisecarver in his first amorous episode.

In elaborating on "Sonny's" attributes, Mrs. Deveny asserted: "I'd like to take care of him the rest of my life. . . . He's good, considerate and older than his years. She would not return to her husband, she said.

CHINA:

Friendly Enemies

Once deadly enemies, Chinese nationalists and Japanese troops have become brothers in arms in northern China, where Nipponese forces have been employed by the central government for the protection of vital territory and railroads against communist attack.

While the Japanese actively aided the nationalists in their drive to secure a foothold in the north, U. S. marines kept their distance in the bloody strife between Chiang Kai-shek's troops and the Reds, being ordered only to guard American lives and property in the battle zone. Meanwhile, the nationalists pressed their advantage with lend-lease supplies originally destined for use against the Japanese.

Though fighting raged throughout the whole northern area, attention was riveted on nationalist attempts to smash into the industrial province of Manchuria, which the communists reportedly planned to convert into a military stronghold. Early fighting centered around Shanhaikwan, gateway city to Manchuria lying at the eastern end of the Great Wall.

G.I. INSURANCE:

Too much high pressure on draftees when they took out government life insurance on entering the service and not enough salesmanship now to get them to keep it after discharge, are the main reasons why three out of four veterans are lapsing their insurance, according to a study by Northwestern National Life Insurance company.

World War II service insurance is less flexible and carries fewer privileges than government insurance for veterans of World War I.

Attitude Against Postwar Service Sways Congress

Public Joins Influential Organizations in Objections to Training; Need for Interim Security Force Argued.

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

In the days that followed President Truman's message to congress urging universal military training we, in Washington, waited to see if there would be an echo to the President's words spoken so earnestly but with so little effect on the audience before him. There was an echo all right but it was an emphatic rumble of negation.

I wasn't surprised—I read my listeners' letters.

It was interesting to see the way the members of congress reacted to the President's message as he delivered it. I watched them with one eye on the text of his speech as I stood squeezed into the crowd in the gallery of the house.

Varied Reaction
To Proposal

Here are some of the sentences which I checked as bringing response:

" . . . above all else, we are strong because of the courage and vigor and skill of a liberty-loving people who are determined that this nation shall remain forever free." (Applause). Well, that was a general, non-compromising sentiment. Nothing to do with the subject in hand.

There was the statement that we didn't lack faith in the United Nations organization, "on the contrary with all we have, we intend to back our obligations and commitments under the United Nations charter." (Mild applause, this time.)

Then came the response to the first direct appeal for the measure in hand. The President said: "The surest way to guarantee that no nation will attack us is to remain strong in the only kind of strength an aggressor can understand—military power." Applause again but I had the feeling it was for the sentiment and not the suggested means of implementing it.

When he said that "the basic reason for military training" is to guarantee safety and freedom from an aggressor, there was another demonstration, but not quite as energetic and many members, I noted, refrained from any applause at all.

The last note is the most emphatic. "Good applause" followed the President's affirmation that "until we are assured that our peace machinery is functioning adequately, we must relentlessly preserve our superiority on land and sea and in the air." But that is just what the congress is not willing to do because it believes the country is not willing to have them do it. I am sure of that because I know they have been receiving, as I have, far more letters against military training than in favor of it.

Must Sell
Public Program

Today, a man who keeps his fingers on the pulse of congress assures me that there will never be a universal military training act until a great deal more "selling" has been done by those who believe in it, than has been attempted so far.

This man, like the writer, is a convert to the cause, so his expression was the reverse of wishful thinking. Both of us, though members of the American Legion, never favored their program for universal service urged upon congress, beginning shortly after the last war.

"There is too much organized opposition," my friend said, "such powerful influences as the federal council of churches, some influential members of the Catholic church, virtually all of labor so far (and this includes the CIO and the AFL which often nullify each other's efforts) the colleges and the unorganized group which might be called simply 'the mothers.'"

Where do the returned veterans stand? It is too early to say. If they follow in their fathers' footsteps they will eventually vote for preparedness. It is the tendency of men who have seen service to place a high value on thorough preliminary training. But they will not become vocal until they join the ranks of the World War I veteran organizations or build others of their own.

There is, however, another force which may change the picture—a change in the international set-up which will inject the element of fear into the people's attitude and since fear starts the adrenal flow that usually means action.

Meanwhile, there are those who feel that complete preparedness not only is essential in the interim, even though a future world security organization is moving swiftly to fruition, but that it will also act as a stimulus toward such a goal.

The argument runs, briefly: We must prepare to enforce peace, or prepare to fight a war. Many members of congress realize this and would undoubtedly support the President's program if they felt they could do so without flying in the face of the majority opinion of their constituents. I do not intend to use this column as a platform upon which to debate the issue now but I would like to present a viewpoint expressed by a medical man which made considerable impression on the comparatively few Washingtonians who heard him address a recent meeting in the capitol. The speaker was Dr. G. B. Chisholm, one of the world's foremost psychiatrists, who served as chief medical officer of the Canadian army and is now deputy health minister of Canada.

'Maturity' Needed
For Peace

His thesis is that "this is a sick world, with an old, chronic but evermore extensive and serious sickness. Its sickness has recently become acutely dangerous and the future is uncertain indeed."

It is a sickness which has made us "the kind of people" who fight major wars every 15 or 20 years. The cure is education. Just as individuals become neurotic because they are not mature, and thus are unable to cope with the situations they must meet, so the world has developed a behaviour pattern which produces something which nobody wants: war.

We must have enough people who can show tolerance, be patient, and above all have the ability to compromise. These are qualities of maturity. Dr. Chisholm points out, and people, mature in this sense, would not want to start wars and would prevent other people from starting them.

But the doctor realizes that education will not produce such maturity in one generation. But such a state must be realized or we face one of two alternatives. Either we must become a race of trained killers, or a race of slaves. Until we can achieve education sufficient to avoid such horrible fates, "for so long as it may take to change the bringing up of children enough in this world, our close watch on each and everyone in the world should not be relaxed for a moment." The first step in eradicating war is an attainable stopgap, Dr. Chisholm believes. Security must be achieved and the valid fear of aggression eliminated. This means legislation backed by immediately available combined force prepared to suppress ruthlessly any appeal to force by any peoples of the world. The administration of such a force is a delicate problem but it can be devised if and when the great power really wants it.

The second step would be to provide the opportunity for all peoples to live on economic levels which do not vary too widely, either geographically or by groups within a population. This means a redistribution of material. This is possible since there are enough resources in the world to go around.

It is impossible in this space to do justice to Dr. Chisholm's views but the main points are these: he feels that man has developed one consistent pattern of behaviour which causes him to indulge in a major war at frequent intervals; that going to war represents immaturity; that immaturity can only be cured by education beginning at childhood with an accent on the "sciences of living"; that until we achieve maturity we must unite ruthlessly to suppress the effort on the part of any nation or anyone in any nation to start a war.

Psychiatrists may not solve the problem of world peace but it is safe to say that immature laymen won't either. Meanwhile, what congress must decide is how dry the country wants to keep our powder.

THE STORY THUS FAR: Spratt Herling, a successful motion picture producer, had married Elizabeth, after her first husband was reportedly killed in World War I. They had three children, Dick, War I. They had three children, Dick, War I. They had three children, Dick, War I.

CHAPTER III

For a moment she stood turning the radio knob. The radio mourned that there were no flowers in its garden of love, offered her a remedy for acid indigestion and inquired perfunctorily if she was troubled by nagging pains in the small of her back. With a wringing of her nose, back, Elizabeth switched off the voices and decided to read until it was time to get out the makings of the dinner cocktails. If she started now she could probably finish her novel. Stretching out on the chaise-longue, she took up the book and found the place where she had left off last night. It was not an intellectual treat, but it was interesting—after reading All This and Heaven Too she had learned that the English author who wrote under the pseudonym of Joseph Shearing had published, several years before, another fictionalized version of the Prasin murder, and Elizabeth was well enough acquainted with the sinister Shearing heroines to be sure that the governess as portrayed here would not be a fit companion for anybody's children. She had not been disappointed. Having begun an evil career on page one, the damsel was now behaving most wickedly, demure in her bonnet and shawl while she dreamed up yet more sins. Absorbed in the lady's beruffled iniquity, she was annoyed when she heard the buzz of her telephone. This phone was not connected with the others in the house and its number was known only to her best friends, so the call could be for nobody but herself. She pulled her attention out of the book, put her cigarette into the ashtray and reached reluctantly for the phone. Spratt's voice greeted her.

"Elizabeth, are we having anybody to dinner tomorrow night?"

"No, do you want to bring in somebody?"

"Kessler. I've just been talking to him. He's got an idea for clearing up this story. So don't have anybody else around. I want to go into it with him after dinner."

"All right, tell him tomorrow at seven-thirty. Has he got Hollywood ulcers, or can he eat anything?"

"He can eat anything, so far as I know, but remember what I told you—only one hand. Have something that won't be too awkward."

"Oh yes, I'm glad you reminded me. Soup to start with, and what about chicken patties? Then he won't have to use a knife and fork at once."

"Sounds fine to me."

"And one thing more—has he got a wife or anything that I should call up and invite with him?"

"No wife—come to think of it, though, I did hear him mention a daughter, but I don't know how old she is. I'll find out if she's grown and let you know. You'd better tell Dick to stay around and take her out of the way after dinner so Kessler and I can talk."

"Oh dear," exclaimed Elizabeth, "oh dear. Does the girl speak English?"

"I've no idea," Spratt laughed penitently. "Tell him my heart bleeds for him, but this is the way I make a living for my family and there's no way out."

"You'd better start your heart bleeding for me. I'm the one who'll have to break the news to him. All right, I'll do my best, dinner, Dick and everything."

"I know you will. I've got to go now, three people waiting for me. Thanks," said Spratt, and hung up.

Elizabeth screwed up her face as she reached for her desk calendar to make a note of tomorrow's dinner. She did not mind it, for she was used to entertaining Spratt's colleagues, but she felt sorry for Dick. He could take the girl to a show, if she understood the language well enough. She ought to, Spratt had said something at lunch about Kessler's having been two or three years in this country. Elizabeth hoped Miss Kessler would at least be pretty. Flipping the leaves of the calendar, she tried to remember what the date was. Sunday, Monday, Tuesday—today was Monday, so here was the page for tomorrow, blank but for a note reminding herself of an appointment with the hairdresser. She was scribbling "Kessler to dinner 7:30," when the date at the bottom of the page leaped up at her, and struck her and glared at her and made her start backward to put the calendar down quickly, but she could still see the date and she put her arm over her eyes as though by doing that she could shut it out of sight of her mind. October 9, 1942. Her imagination was making such a fierce effort to adjust itself that even with her eyes covered she could still see it, October 6, 1942.

For though the figures did not resemble each other, there had been a fraction of a second when by some trick of the light or of her own mind it had looked like October 6, 1918.

She was remembering that day, and nothing she could do or think of could make her stop remembering. It was just about this time in the afternoon, and the autumn sun coming in by the front door glittered through the hall and fell on the yellow telegram she held in her hand, with its letters blue-black against the shining sheet of paper. "... regrets to inform you... Sergeant Arthur Kittredge... killed..."

There was no reason for this, Elizabeth was telling herself angrily. She had fought and conquered it years ago, she had rebuilt her life in the knowledge that she had conquered it, she was a perfectly rational woman and a very happy one, there was no reason why every now and then some incident of no importance should strike her down and leave her as she was now, quivering under an assault of pain. Lying on the chaise-longue, her arms crossed over her eyes and her hands pressing against her temples, she fought it with all the strength she had. But it did no good and she had known it would not. She might as well have tried to argue with an earthquake as with these rare but terrible relivings of the days when she had been put to the torture. Every time she thought it would be the last. But a year later, or two or three years later, some occurrence too small to be otherwise noticed would stir up the fire that she had been so sure was finally out. There was no escaping it; that day came back as though it had been that day and not this that she was living in.

It was such a cool, shining day, the trees reddening, and it seemed that nearly every house in Tulsa had a flag rippling from its front porch. After spending the day rolling bandages at the Red Cross headquarters, Elizabeth came home with her knitting-bag on her arm. There was very little she could do to win the war, but if knitting sweaters and any rolling miles of bandage was of any value she was glad to do it. Any value that might shorten the war by five minutes would bring Arthur back that much sooner, and for five minutes more of his presence she would give up all the years she had to spend without him. She ran up the steps, singing. It was a silly song, but everybody was singing it about that time, "I'd like to see the Kaiser with a lily in his hand." Their little house welcomed her brightly as she ran in. She and Arthur had lived here for the year before he went to the army, and she now shared it with a girl friend who was releasing a man for war by working for the telephone company.

As she opened the door the sun fell in a long rectangle on the floor of the hall. Dropping her knitting-bag on a chair Elizabeth turned by eager habit to look at the table where the colored maid always put the mail. Arthur wrote her often, but the ships from France were not regular; sometimes she would get weeks without a letter and then get a pile of them at once. Wonderful letters he wrote, mirthful even in the blood and dirt of the trenches, telling her very little about the awfulness of the war but describing every amusing incident he had observed and only now and then changing to wistfulness when he told her how much he missed her. Only once, when she wrote to him saying the war could not be only what he told her, he answered: "Please, Elizabeth, don't ask me to write about what I've seen. When I write to you I can forget for awhile that I've seen it. Let me keep it like that. I love you so. Haven't you got any new pictures of yourself?" She sent the pictures, but never suggested again that he write her anything but what he wanted to.

There were no letters on the table today, nothing but the telegram. She picked it up and slit it open, wondering vaguely who could have anything to say to her important enough to be sent by wire, and then she saw that it came from the War Department. The message was mercifully brief. It merely told her that Arthur was dead. She did not know then that he had died of wounds received at Chateau-Thierry. They told her that later, in a letter from the Red Cross.

She did not understand even the little they had told her. She stood still, staring at the sheet of paper in her hand, all her instincts of self-protection rising up to prevent her understanding what it said.

She folded up the telegram and put it into her purse. She picked up a vase of flowers on the table and straightened the cloth under it, looked at the picture on the cover of a magazine lying near by, brushed a speck of dust from a chair, picked up her knitting-bag and went upstairs to the bedroom she had shared with Arthur before he joined the army. The windows were open to the afternoon sun. Arthur had said, "Let's find a house that has the bedroom on the west side. There's no sense in inviting the sun to come in and wake us up at four or five o'clock all summer long. Anytime we have to get up at dawn we can use an alarm clock, so why not let ourselves sleep late when we have a chance?" Elizabeth had never thought about it, but once he called her attention to it she wondered why everybody didn't make allowance for such an obvious fact. It was odd, she had thought at first, that Arthur should be so much interested in dwellings, for he knew nothing about architecture; he was a research chemist employed by one of the oil companies. But Arthur was interested in everything. He had never been bored in his life, and never understood how anybody could be, with a perpetually fascinating world to be enjoyed and the longest lifetime too short to enjoy all of it.

Even in his ordinary little house he had arranged their room perfectly—the bookshelves within reach of the bed, the light excellently placed for reading, her dressing-table between the windows, the long mirror so she could see herself from hat to shoes when she got dressed. "You have such fine ankles," he said to her, "imagine your having to dress in a room where you haven't a chance to see whether or not your stockings are on straight." He had planned everything for her. She had let him do it, without realizing that since they could not afford everything, he would get what she needed and take what was left. So she had not noticed until later that his shaving-glass did not turn properly and he had to stretch his neck to get at those hairs around the angle of his chin. She was saving part of her army allowance now to buy him a new mirror when he came back, and a better light for his writing table, though she was going to let him pick out the latter for himself. Arthur was not, thank heaven, a sentimental goose. He might have worn a hideous necktie if she had given him one, but if she should give him an inadequate gadget for his work he would not use it any longer than it took to buy a better one. So she was going to give him the money she had saved for the lamp and let him select it, as soon as he came back and got to work again.

A hundred hammers started to beat on her head. She dropped her knitting-bag in the middle of the floor and grabbed at the catch of her purse to get out that thing inside, which she seemed to remember had said what it could not possibly say. But it did say just what she recalled. It told her Arthur was dead.

Then all of a sudden she knew what had happened. The purse dropped out of her hand and fell softly on the half-made army sweater that was tumbling out of her bag. The telegram dropped with it, and a little wind from outside picked it up and began blowing it merrily around the room. Her legs went down like strips of macaroni. She caught at the nearest solid object, which happened to be the bed, and then at the nearest object on that, which happened to be a pillow, and she clamped the corner of the pillow between her teeth and heard herself making fierce choking noises down in her throat, like an animal strangling.

At first she was not thinking of anything. The world was simply full of a wild pain that had clamped on her and crushed out of her everything but consciousness of the pain itself. Then after awhile she began to recall everything she had read or heard about what those explosions did to men in battle. She wondered if it had hurt him very much. It did not seem possible that anything could have hurt him. He was never sick. He never complained of anything. Arthur was strong as an athlete. She could remember his arms around her and herself saying, "Arthur, you're hurting me!" and when he said "I'm sorry dearest," and relaxed his grip she was sorry she had spoken.

TIRE RATIONING

If you are an automobile owner in search of tires, here is one thing to keep your eye on. The tire industry is pulling all sorts of wires backstage to lift export restrictions.

At present they are permitted to export 400,000 truck tires and 100,000 passenger tires during the last quarter of this year. They would like to export a lot more. In the first place, they don't have to worry about OPA ceiling prices when selling abroad. Secondly, they can build up their postwar markets by getting in on the ground floor.

So they would rather sell more tires abroad. But if they do, they sell less tires at home. And today a tire certificate issued to a person desiring to buy a tire is nothing more than a hunting license. He can go out and hunt for a tire. If he's lucky enough to find one, his certificate entitles him to buy it.

DEPARTMENT OF PEACE

When the house foreign affairs committee heard testimony on the Randolph bill to create a department of peace, the star witness was a 64-year-old former mule-driver from Morgantown, W. Va.

Chairman Sol Bloom and members of his committee listened with rapt attention as Raymond M. Davis read a 16-page statement on why the United States should take the lead in establishing a new cabinet post to spread the gospel of peace throughout the world.

After he finished, white-thatched GOP Rep. Charles Eaton of New Jersey declared:

"Mr. Davis, you may be unschooled, as you tell the committee, but you certainly are not uneducated. That is one of the finest documents I have ever listened to."

World Peace is not just a hobby with the West Virginia coal man, though he describes it as such. It is a burning ideal. A self-made business man who now operates two coal mines employing more than 500 workers, Davis had made many speeches at his own expense throughout the country urging a government department of peace. He also has written a proposed constitution for the United Nations that has attracted wide attention.

The state department thought well enough of his ideas to invite him to the San Francisco conference as an observer.

Rep. Jennings Randolph of West Virginia, freely admits that Davis was the chief spark plug behind his peace resolution.

"When I was looking at the rear end of a mule all day in West Virginia coal mines," says Davis, "I never thought that one day I'd be instrumental in having such an important piece of legislation introduced in congress."

Note—The second initial of Davis' name stands for "Moses." Perhaps what we need are more plain, garden-variety Moses' of the Davis type, instead of striped-pants diplomats, to lead us out of the international wilderness.

BOWLES HOLDS INFLATION FLOOD

OPAdministrator Chester Bowles is one of the most abused men in Washington. Everyone is badgering him. Congressmen demand that their constituents increase the price of this or that. Farm groups want to raise the price of milk or cattle. Business groups want to abolish all ceiling prices.

Probably the common man doesn't appreciate it, but here are some things which will happen if Chester Bowles loses his battle to stop the inflation flood:

1. Every person putting his money in life insurance does so with the idea of getting his money back—100 cents on the dollar. But if there is inflation, the insurance dollar will be worth 75 cents, 50 cents, or even 30 cents.
2. Every person on a retired pension, whether a railroad employee, a college, a school or a big corporation employee, will see his income shrink if there is inflation.
3. Every widow living on money left by her husband will see that income shrivel.
4. Every school teacher will have great difficulty having her salary move up when the value of the dollar moves down.
5. Every civil servant, whether working for city, state or federal government, will be in the same boat as the teachers.
6. Every college endowment, every charity or other enterprise with fixed invested capital stands ready to have its investment evaporate with inflation.

CAPITAL CHAFF

When Eugene Meyer, publisher of the Washington Post, celebrated his 70th birthday, his family gave him a party on Sunday, the Post staff gave him another one on Monday, and on Wednesday he was guest of honor at a luncheon.

One high government official is certain, from studying a list of Presidential appointments, that Harry Truman does not intend to run for President in 1948. "Obviously," he says, "Truman's preparing to run for governor of Missouri."

BOEHLE-HENGST

The marriage of Miss Betty E. Hengst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Hengst of Port Lavaca, Texas, and Mr. Clarence W. Boehle of Hondo was solemnized in the Zion Lutheran Church, Houston, Texas, on Saturday, Nov. 17, 1945, at 6 p. m. by candlelight, with Rev. George Reck officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a two-piece wool suit of dove blue, with white blouse and black accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations and she carried white gloves and a small Bible.

Miss Stella Hengst, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a suit of gray, with white blouse, gloves, and black accessories, and her flowers were pink carnations and pink rosebuds. Miss Jewel Sanders of Port Lavaca was bridesmaid. She wore a suit of gray and white and black accessories, her flowers being pink carnations and rosebuds.

Hurley K. Boehler, classmate of the bridegroom, was best man, and Walter E. Hengst, Jr., brother of the bride, was groomsmen.

The church was decorated with white chrysanthemums and candles, and soft organ music was played throughout the ceremony.

After the wedding everyone gathered at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Perry, 1225 Morris St., where sandwiches, cake, coffee and punch were served in the dining room. A cloth of fine lace covered the table, which had for its centerpiece a large cut glass bowl filled with chrysanthemums and fern; matching candelabra held white candles. The bride's cousin, Mrs. Joyce Perry, served the cake, and Miss Margaret Johnson poured coffee and punch. The bride's cake was a lovely round confection of all white with touches of pink, on which sugar-spun roses and green leaves were combined. A bride and groom decorated the center of the cake.

Mr. Boehle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Boehle, of Hondo, was recently discharged from the Army Air Forces and as a cadet was stationed at Allee Army Air Field, Victoria, Texas. Mr. and Mrs. Boehle will make their home in San Antonio, Texas.—Contributed.

WELDER'S OVERALLS
COME CLEAN QUICK

HUNTSVILLE, ALABAMA.—Mrs. Claude Buchanan wrote a letter to Faultless Starch that should interest every woman who has overalls in her wash. Here is what she said:

"My husband is a welder and wears overalls. He gets them so dirty and greasy. They come clean quick and iron so much better when I use Faultless Starch."

Now there is a way to save a lot of hard work scrubbing and scouring dirt and grease out of overalls. Give them a light starch with Faultless Starch! They iron up beautifully. They wash clean in a jiffy—and they feel so smooth and comfortable to wear. Not rough and scratchy—no chafing!

SO EASY TO DO

It certainly is no hard job to give overalls that light starch-finish. Just use a very light starch solution. Dip in the overalls and run through the wringer. It's that easy! And once you try it and see how easy those dirty clothes wash clean you'll starch wash shirts, pants, children's play clothes—and everything that gets real dirty.

By giving these clothes light starch with Faultless Starch you do a lot to keep the dirt out. You see, Faultless Starch is made a special way to make it PENE-TRATE the fabric. It gets inside—and helps by keeping the dirt outside. When you wash, the starch dissolves instantly—and out comes the dirt!

So try it, this week. You'll be delighted with the hard scrubbing work it saves... and you'll like the way it saves the wear and tear on clothes, too. Be sure to ask your grocer for Faultless Starch!—Adv.

CURTAINED PRODUCTION CAUSES INFLATION

WASHINGTON.—The Baruch letter to congressmen lifted the veil about a foot on the whole inner picture.

Without mentioning the labor-management conference, the Attlee visit, the New York and Detroit elections or any other matter specifically, this now unattached elder advisor of the nation penetrated these and all other current economic arguments filling the papers with at least one fresh ray of light.

His flashlight beamed on the problem of production as the root of all economic evil. Delay and curtailment of it by strikes and otherwise boosts inflation, he said (as it does, because slack production makes more critical the shortage of goods, which in turn causes higher prices).

The current brakes upon production also should make us wary of giving away what goods we have to foreign nations, especially those like England, Czechoslovakia, France and Russia (he mentioned these specifically in his meagerly reported letter) because by giving-away, we reduce what production we have available to fight inflation.

He got off his own beam on two other points, it seems to me. He said tax reduction also threatens inflation, without recognizing that a reduction in the vast Truman spending budgets projected publicly for the next 20 months is the first logical way to curtail the government fiscal threat.

SPENDING REDUCTION

A spending reduction in an inflationary period like this is certainly more important than the meager tax reduction which continues war levies at nearly 90 per cent of war levels.

Also he lit once upon a rubbish argument when he worried about our farm and mineral resources along with Interior Secretary Ickes, who is nearly always bad company for a seeker of objective economic truth.

With all these nations owing us money, we should be able to stock up on deficient minerals (if the administration would devote itself to this); and most people are bragging about the ability of Agriculture Secretary Anderson to get the farm production straightened out from its war mess next year.

Mr. Baruch's gleaming eye could have gone further and the veil could have gone higher. Fundamentally, honestly and basically, what are the tap-root causes of the condition we are in? There is but one.

The world is being pressured into political economics, domestically and internationally. Here especially we are striving to do the right thing politically—but not the right thing economically.

In international affairs, some crusaders want us to give things away for political reasons. Mr. Attlee is coming over to urge us, according to his inspired press, to give away the atomic bomb.

WHAT ATTLEE WANTS

In my well-advised opinion, Mr. Attlee is not much interested in the atomic bomb, but primarily in getting the money, delayed, from us—anything up to over five billion dollars to set his financial house in order so his Socialist party can buy industries for his own purely political purposes.

He has never made out an economic case of government need of these industries for any other than his purpose to prove socialism. He has presented us with no prospectus of reconstruction for Britain showing how she could use our money to make more business for us or her—to expand production.

He has not offered his people any sincerely conceived production plan along these lines. Indeed, he does not think along these lines, but on Socialist political lines.

What this poor sick world needs is to get away from politics and back upon the beam of realism in economics. By throwing away the atom bomb or money in bad loans for political purposes, we can destroy the world.

I promised to try to demonstrate by objective analysis the same root causes of our own troubles domestically—namely that we are being high-pressured into political economics, into decisions for political effect rather than what is economically right and necessary.

Mr. Truman's latest wage-boosting plan is a program to increase government employees by 20 per cent, congressmen, cabinet officers and others even more than this amount. At a time when the President is worried about inflation—an inflation caused by the shortage of goods.

Season's Trend to Elegance Is Reflected in Evening Attire

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ALL signs point to a brilliant social season that will be as colorful and dramatic as in prewar days. This brings a challenge to designers of "lovely lady" fashions to create formal dress in terms of elegance and distinction that will add glamour to the many gala events planned for fall and winter.

A definite return of the long-skirted gown to the formal evening mode is top news. From those who are "going formal" the demand is insistent for long skirts, either the tall and slender silhouette or the picturesque full-skirted types generously cut to achieve a full and graceful sweep about the hemline. These beautiful gowns that make rich fabric and dramatic accessories their theme are most assuredly writing a fascinating chapter in the current fashion story, in that they are recapturing the romance and charm befitting formal evening festivities.

The elegance of this season's evening gowns centers about the rich fabrics employed, such as magnificent brocades, rich velvet which has come into its own this season, crisp taffetas and moires. Quality kind crepes in black and bright colors, and beautiful, drapable jersey are making names for themselves in the evening mode, especially white jersey, which is exquisitely glitter-embroidered. Satin of superb quality is a magic word in black, white or deep rich colors such as plum tones and wineberry shades, also radiant amber tones. Royal and electric blue set a striking new color pace. For young deb wear, pastels score high in color choices.

That designers are making wide use of handsome wools in creating gorgeous formal modes is most exciting news. It is the evening coat of superbly jewel-embroidered wool that is the big "hit" theme. The wools used are in rich lush colors or in black or in white. The eye-catching mandarin coat shown to the right dramatizes "dead black" wool with brilliantly colorful jewel embroidery. It is worn with great chic over a charming black crepe dinner gown. The skirt is slit in front and caught to a low hobble drape at the back. The belt of the dress gleams with matching embroidery.

Heavy slipper satin in radiant royal blue is the high-style fabric choice for the very beautiful gown to the left in the picture. It has the "new" look from tip to toe, interpreting ultra formality in its every detail. It has an almost strapless bodice with a halter loop, a deep tight-fitted midriff and a billowy skirt with fullness over the hips just as they wore in picturesque days of old. The skirt is dramatically slashed at the front, giving a glimpse of beautifully jeweled evening slippers. The long gloves are flecked with multi-toned sequins.

In contrast to the model just described, note the slimmer and sculptural lines of the Greek-column dress centered in the picture. This lovely creation by Bruno is of the classic type that makes up so beautifully in either white crepe or white jersey. The one-shoulder bodice gathered to a short tunic is news. The border trimming in Greek design is exquisitely patterned with delicate gold beadwork.

The demand is terrific for "occasion" dresses and costumes that tune to the mood to "dress up and go places" this winter. These dresses for restaurant wear, for cocktails, concerts and the theater and smart afternoon affairs as well as for after-five gala events flaunt glitter, luxurious furs, and dramatic jewelry, and being short-length they can be appropriately worn at almost every dress-up affair. The feather hats and those of fur or jewel-embroidered fur or fabric top off these glamour costumes to perfection.

Gabardine Casual

All heads turn to the girl in the handsome Nelly Don casual designed with inspired lines and studied simplicity. Distinctly fall, 1945—deep, deep armholes cut in one with the yoke. Sleeves cascade over a smooth, wide shoulder line. The long, lean line is achieved by a fly front.

Knit Dresses Warm As Well as Stunning

Girls in the grandstand football crowd have a new "rave" on in way of a stunning handknit wool dress worn under a warm tweed topper or fur coat. These chic and "comfy" handknits are to be had both in specialty shops and the better large stores. They are in perfectly stunning vivid colors such as bright jade green, chartreuse, navy, a dazzling copper tone, also in coral, cerise and fuchsia shades, also deep wine tones. They are in one-piece and two-piece styles. The shirtmaker dresses have long bishop sleeves with link fastened cuffs. The two-piece jacket and skirt models are especially liked because with the topper removed they have a suit appearance. The grand thing about these handknits is they do not bulge, wrinkle or sag.

Cotton Plaid Shirts

Are Worn With Slacks

Young moderns like the new plaid cotton shirts to wear with their slacks. There are two styles available. One is to be worn with the shirt tails flying out. The other is a wild Western blouse that is just the thing to wear with fishwife skirts, slacks and pedal pushers.

Glove and Scarf Set of Wool

The "keep warm" idea is expressed in scarf-and-glove sets made of all wool fabric. These practical twosomes are chic with unfurled suits. Some of the scarfs come with mittens instead of gloves. One style is of hounds tooth check another dressier type is of red jersey with black yarn embroidery accents.

Seems as if "Confidential Agent" should have been titled "Cruelty to Lauren Bacall." She's badly miscast, as the daughter of an English coal baron, and she's up against such expert actors as Charles Boyer, Katina Paxinou, Peter Lorre and George Coulouris. Maybe she can win back her public in "Stallion Road"; in that one she'll have Humphrey Bogart opposite her again.

Joan Loring, Warner Bros. actress who'll be seen soon in "The Verdict," with Sydney Greenstreet and Peter Lorre, has been informed that her father, Fred Ellis, has been released from the Japanese prison camp where he has been interned for four years.

Alan Ladd and Gail Russell were set to do a long scene, showing their first meeting in Paramount's "Calcutta." So the crew made up a pool on the number of "takes" each man thought the scene would require. Each put up a dollar; the guesses ran from 10 to 20, since the scene was five times the length of the average one. Ladd and Russell did it in one "take."

Nick Castle, directing the ice ballets in "Glamour Girl," in which Monogram stars Belita, fell down so often that finally he invented some non-skid boots—golf shoes whose soles are equipped with rubber plugs. He offered to lend a pair to a newspaper photographer who wanted to photograph Belita in action—but the smart guy just donned his own ice skates.

Johnny Sands, 18-year-old Texan, makes his screen debut in "The Dream of Home"; he'll play the teen-age sweetheart of Jean Porter. He's under contract to David O. Selznick, who's had him taking lessons in acting by way of breaking him in.

Parkyakarkus has been asked by a Chicago philologist to send him a recording of that Greek dialect heard on "Meet Me at Parky's"; the record's to be added to those in a collection of foreign accents. Parky, who majored in English at college, will oblige.

"The Sparrow and the Hawk," CBS aviation serial, draws hundreds of letters from flying enthusiasts—and they're not all from amateurs, by any means. Some of the top men in the aviation industry have congratulated the program's makers.

Ralph Edwards should be remembered as the only performer in this country who, for the entire duration of the war, voluntarily contributed the services of himself and his cast for the purpose of selling war bonds. He teed off the Eighth Victory loan drive with his appearance in Wichita, Kan. Two and one-half million dollars' worth of bonds were sold as the direct result of that "Truth or Consequences" effort.

ODDS AND ENDS—Vera Vague, of the Bob Hope show, goes dramatic in Columbia's "Snafu."... Ren Johnson, cowboy hostler, has been working for Hank Potts, who furnishes horses for motion pictures... now the movie bug has bitten him—he'll make his screen debut in RKO's "Badman's Territory."... Perry Como, star of NBC's "Supper Club" show, is one of the busiest men in radio—does his ten broad casts a week and has never turned down a request to appear at a benefit or on a bond show if he could possibly grant it... Guy Lombardo's sponsor is offering $10,000 in cash prizes for naming a song. Carmen Lombardo's writing the song, Guy and Carmen are the judges.

SNAPPY FACTS about RUBBER

A new rubber cement called "Plastilock" for binding metals, woods, plastics, has been developed by B. F. Goodrich.

Latex foam made of synthetic rubber can now be used in the manufacture of mattresses and other cushioning materials.

The goal of the rubber industry a few decades ago was a tire that would run 3,500 miles. Now it's not unusual for a passenger tire to run ten times that far.

Some of the first synthetic tires built in early war days lasted only fifty miles. Mileage of present synthetic tires compares favorably with natural rubber tires.

Mix This Cough
Syrup at Home.
Quick Relief

Easily Mixed. Needs No Cooking.

Here's an old home mixture your parents probably used. But, once tried, you'll always use it, because it gives such quick, pleasing relief for coughs due to colds.

And it's so easily mixed. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking is needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, if desired. Now put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (obtained from any drugstore) into a pint bottle, and fill up with your syrup. This makes a full pint of truly splendid cough medicine, and gives you about four times as much for your money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a long time.

You can feel this simple home mixture take right hold of a cough. It loosens the phlegm, soothes irritation, and helps clear the air passages. Eases the soreness, makes breathing easier, and lets you get restful sleep. Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for its quick action on throat and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.—Adv.

Glamorize Leftovers

There is no problem which so consistently faces the homemaker as that of leftovers. Even with rationing, there were always some bits of food that had to be utilized and made into palatable meals.

Leftovers seem particularly prominent after a big holiday dinner. It is then we must bring all ingenuity to bear and bring out well seasoned, attractive casseroles from the kitchen.

It is not essential to disguise a food so thoroughly that it will mystify the family. If chicken or turkey is cut up in a savory white sauce and flecked with bits of green peas and pimiento, then topped with a flaky biscuit crust, no one will object to its being a leftover from the roast bird itself.

So it is with other leftovers. Vegetables can be tossed together with tangy dressing and placed on crisp lettuce leaves. Mashed potatoes can be turned out into golden, crisply fried cakes, etc.

Why not try this the next time you have leftover turkey or chicken? It's a scalloped casserole dish well flavored with cheese and tomatoes:

Scalloped Spaghetti.

(Serves 8)

1/4 cup chicken fat or shortening
1/4 cup chopped onion
Salt and pepper
1 cup grated cheese
1 cup canned tomatoes
2 cups diced chicken or turkey
1/4 cup flour
2 cups chicken stock
1 8-ounce package of spaghetti
1/2 cup buttered bread crumbs

Melt fat, cook onions slowly for 10 minutes. Add flour and stir well. Add stock, stirring constantly until thickened. Mix in salt and pepper to taste. Add cheese and stir until melted. Next blend in chicken or turkey and tomatoes. Place chicken or turkey mixture and spaghetti, alternately in a greased casserole and cover with bread crumbs. Bake for 25 minutes in a moderate (375-degree) oven.

Potatoes leftover? Here's a delicious, mouth-watering way to take care of them:

Hashed Browned Potatoes.

(Serves 6)

3 cups diced, cooked potatoes
3 tablespoons shortening
Salt and pepper to taste
About 1/4 cup milk

Use a medium sized skillet. Heat shortening, add diced potatoes, sea-

LYNN SAYS

Palate-tempting Hints: If you want an icing that is sugar-easy, beat three egg whites until light and fold in slowly one cup of bright colored jelly. Yes, spread it on cake.

You've never heard of cottage cheese griddle cakes? Beat three whole eggs until fluffy, add one cup cottage cheese, salt and pepper, 1/4 cup flour and two tablespoons melted fat. Bake on a griddle and serve with maple syrup or jelly and powdered sugar.

Next time you have chicken a la king, serve it on tiny toast points, garnished with green pepper rings, sauteed in oil.

A quick, delicious dessert is made of waffles to which chocolate has been added. Serve with sweetened whipped cream.

Leftover cereal should be molded and chilled, then sliced and fried until golden brown. Serve with syrup or jelly.

Use mushroom soup for creamed chicken or ham. Serve on warmed rusks for a tasty treat.

soning and sufficient milk to moisten. Cover and cook slowly, stirring only until milk is absorbed. Turn once and let other side brown slightly. Serve.

Meat pie is an excellent way of using up a cupful or two of that dried, leftover roast. Leftover carrots and potatoes go right into it for flavor and variety.

Meat Pie.

(Serves 6)

1/2 cup diced celery
1/2 cup diced onion
1/2 cup diced green pepper
2 cups cubed leftover roast
1 cup cubed leftover potatoes
1 cup peas (may be leftover)
1 cup gravy
4 slices dried bread, cubed

Brown celery, onions and green pepper in hot fat. Add combined meat, potatoes, carrots and peas. Add gravy and season to taste. Pour into a casserole and top with bread cubes browned in butter. Bake in a moderate (375-degree) oven for 30 minutes.

If desired, the bread slices may be omitted and the pie topped with biscuits or flaky piecrust. Cheese may be added to the biscuits for variety in flavor.

If bread crumbs become a problem, use them in a dessert with fruit as in Apple Brown Betty.

Apple Brown Betty.

(Serves 4 to 5)

1 cup buttered bread crumbs
3 1/2 cups chopped apples or other fruit
1/2 cup honey
1 cup water

Mix all but 1/4 cup buttered crumbs with apples and place in a deep, buttered dish. Bring the honey and water to a boil and boil 2 minutes. Pour over fruit and bread mixture. Sprinkle remaining crumbs over the top and bake 30 minutes in a moderate (370-degree) oven.

Sponge Cake Custard.

(Serves 8)

4 cups milk, scalded
3 cups dry sponge cake crumbs
3 slightly beaten eggs
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons melted butter
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Pour milk over crumbs and let stand until they are softened. Combine all remaining ingredients and add to crumb-milk mixture. Pour into greased custard cups or casserole and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for one hour. Serve with sliced bananas or jam.

If there's a bit of sour cream left, then use to advantage in the following recipe:

*Veal Chops With Sour Cream

Gravy.

(Serves 6)

6 veal chops
1 egg, beaten
1 tablespoon water
Salt, pepper
1/4 cup cornflake crumbs
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup sour cream

Wipe the chops. Dip first in beaten egg to which one teaspoon salt and one tablespoon of water has been added. Then roll in cornflake crumbs. Sauté slowly in a heavy frying pan until browned. Cover and cook slowly for 20 minutes, turning occasionally. Prepare gravy by blending flour with 1/4 cup meat drippings from bottom of pan and adding the sour cream. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Serve with veal chops and sauteed mushrooms.

THOUGHTS ON MONEY

Money has few friends these days. The sticking kind, the sort of people who want to cling to it tenderly. Coin has become almost a synonym for confetti.

Americans are behaving as if they thought it a reflection on their character not to be spendthrifts. The old slogans have been revised thusly:

1. Take care of the daily-doubles and the pennies will have to take care of themselves.
2. A fool and his money make a perfect parlay.
3. If money burns a hole in your pocket, remember that it saves the moths a lot of work.
4. Waste not, have not!
5. A good race tip is rather to be had than great riches.

Frugality has become a word out of an old dictionary. The man who used to wince at the idea of paying over 75 cents for an ordinary lunch now pays $2.50 and brings his own butter and sugar. Give a waiter only 10 per cent today and you automatically become Scrooge II.

Pull that old one about saving something for a rainy day today and you get a snappy, "Phooey! If it rains I can get an umbrella from the government."

Thousands of people seem to believe that money not only grows on trees, but that the trees can be counted on to make deliveries.

If Ben Franklin were around today delivering epigrams on thrift he would be denounced as a reactionary, a Tory and an enemy of the people.

The questions of the hour are: Is cash a good thing to have around the house? Should a five-dollar bill be regarded as something for the long pull or a quick turnover? Can a man be thrifty and maintain the respect of the community?

Good News for Light Sleepers

We don't know what we would have done if we hadn't had a chat today with Albert H. Chandler. We hadn't been getting much sleep and it worried us. Counting sheep hadn't been of the least help. There had been times when we had been on an eight-hour sheep-counting night. A fellow couldn't go on like that.

Then it happened. We heard a commotion in the corridors and found office associates congratulating Chandler on his 91st birthday. Ninety-one and on the job every day as office receptionist! Sixty-seven years on the paper!

"Ah!" we thought, "Chandler must sleep well. In him there is the secret of repose after hitting the haypile. He can help us."

"Sleep!" exclaimed the hardy veteran. "There's nothing in it! It's the bunk!"

We assume the celebration had upset him somewhat.

"Forget that sheep stuff," he continued. "That's bad. I used to count 'em. Probably counted more sheep in my time than any living American. I even numbered 'em front and rear. Put plates on 'em. Things came to a head back in the '70s, in 1878. I think that was one of the biggest sheep years I ever had. There were so many to be counted that I never slept a wink. So I quit. Haven't tabulated a sheep since."

"But what do you do about 'em'?" "Ignore 'em. All except one. That sheep's been with me over half a century. I call it Old Two Million Eight Thousand and Ninety-four. I had counted that high when I met it. This sheep and I get about the same amount of sleep. Why? Because we forgot the whole business years ago, and know there's nothing to it. All the other sheep keep on hopping back and forth all night waiting for me to start counting and they've gone nuts. They don't get any sleep at all!"

SUN GOD CLIPPED COUPONS

Hirohito, it develops, had a finger in all the financial pies of Japan and is a millionaire many times over. A descendant of a sun god on his banker's side.

Under tradition, nobody in Japan could ever look down on the emperor. Well, if we had all his money, we would not have permitted anybody to look down on us, either.

The emperor's horse, informed of Hirohito's wealth, exclaimed, "That ain't hay!"

New automobiles have been freed of rationing. All you will need to get one now will be:

- 1—About $2,000.
- 2—The name of a dealer who has a car.
- 3—A letter from the President.
- 4—Patience and fortitude.

Sonja Henie and Dan Topping have met in Chicago, the papers say, and decided to part after five years of married life. Artificial ice is not what it's cracked up to be, we take it.

2,276 MORE DISCHARGED BY TWO AAF CENTERS

Tweeds and pin-stripes were the order of the day last week at 2,276 officers and enlisted men entered civilian status from the AAF Western Flying Training Command's two separation bases during the period Nov. 12 to 18.

Randolph Field sent 499 officers and 1,062 enlisted men into mufti during the ninth week of operation, while Ellington Field, Texas, saw 176 officers and 539 enlisted men doff the olive drab for civilian suits during the same period.

In the previous eight weeks of their operation, the two AAF Training Command installations separated a total of 22,479 men, Randolph accounting for 12,423 of the total, and Ellington clearing 10,056.

BIGGER PACKAGES MAY BE SENT OVERSEAS TROOPS

An increase in the size and weight limitations on parcels which may be mailed to American troops stationed outside the continental limit of the United States became effective Nov. 15.

Under the relaxation of the limitations, it will be possible now to mail packages upon request from the soldier up to 42 inches in length or 72 inches in length and girth combined, and 11 pounds in weight.

The War Department pointed out that it will still be necessary to have a specific request in writing from the soldier overseas in order to send any package weighing in excess of 8 ounces, the first-class weight limit on overseas mail. There has been no change in the policy with respect to the sending of articles up to 8 ounces as first-class mail without a request from the soldier.

CHINESE FLYING OFFICERS COMPLETE HONDO TRAINING

Twenty-four Chinese student pilot officers figured in a formal military ceremony at Hondo Field Thursday, November 22, when Col. James A. Ronin, airbase commander, presented them with certificates of flying proficiency indicative of successful conclusion of the Army Air Forces' pilot transition training in B-24 type aircraft.

A military guard of honor made up of Hondo Field flying officers stood at attention as Col. Ronin congratulated each of the Chinese flyers on his accomplishment.

During their schooling at the AAF Western Flying Training Command airfield, the Chinese students were under the supervision of Maj. Ku Chao-Chiang, Chinese detachment commander.

On hand for the ceremony was Lt. Col. Chang Chai-Tsu, representing the Chinese Air Force. He joined Col. Ronin in an inspection of the graduating class.

From Hondo Field the graduates will now proceed to an overseas training unit where they will be formed into twelve pilot and co-pilot teams, and together with other Chinese flyers who have been training elsewhere as gunners, navigators and bombardiers, will receive final combat crew training in four-engine bombers.

Upon conclusion of this training the Chinese units will return to their homeland as full-fledged members of the Chinese Air Force.

Literary Club

Edna Ferber's recent novel, "Great Son," was chosen by Miss Carrie Langfeld as the subject for discussion when she was reader for the Literary Club on Tuesday evening, Nov. 20. Like most of Miss Ferber's books, this one has for its setting a definite era in American progress; it is the story of the Melendy family in Seattle, Wash., against a background of lumbering, salmon fisheries, and the Klondike gold rush. It is a romance of great interest as interpreted by the reviewer.

Mrs. Henry Biry, who was hostess to the club in her home, served chicken salad, pumpkin pie, and coffee to the members and a guest, Mrs. J. W. Koch.

ALBRECHTS CELEBRATE 25TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Albrecht, formerly of D'Hanis, but for several years residents of San Antonio, last Sunday observed the silver anniversary of their marriage, which took place in Holy Cross Catholic Church at D'Hanis on Nov. 16, 1920. Mrs. Albrecht was the former Miss Alma Rothe.

Renewal of marriage vows preceded the High Mass at 9 a. m. in the sanctuary of St. Mary Magdalene's Church, with their pastor, Fr. Doyle, officiating. Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Zinsmeyer, who were members of the first bridal party, witnessed the ceremony. Mrs. Albrecht was in a dress of royal blue crepe with bands of silver nail heads adorning the deep shoulder line. Her corsage was of sweetheart roses.

At noon luncheon was served in the home at 1726 West Almos Dr., with members of the original bridal party and close relatives as guests. Their son, Cpl. Donald Albrecht, is still in Germany.

From 3 to 9 p. m., Mr. and Mrs. Albrecht were hosts to a large number of friends and relatives at an open house reception. The tea table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with a bowl of pink asters, flanked with silver candle holders bearing pink candles. The wedding cake was a beautiful confection adorned with pink and silver. Miss Cornelia Koch served the punch and Mrs. Amos Finger the cake, alternating with Miss Mary Lou Albrecht, daughter of the hosts, and Miss Emily Zinsmeyer. Mrs. M. A. Zinsmeyer presided over the silver cake service.

D'Hanis relatives and friends who attended the celebration were Mrs. H. C. Rothe, Mrs. Oscar Rothe, Judge and Mrs. A. H. Rothe, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Zinsmeyer, Miss Lucy Rothe, Miss Cornelia Koch, Miss Ethel Rothe, Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Koch, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Finger, Misses Emily and Ellen Zinsmeyer.
